City in good position to weather economic uncertainty due to COVID-19 as budget talks begin

Brandi Owczarz gordongazettega@gmail.com

The Calhoun City Council met for a brief regularly scheduled meeting on Monday, April 27, discussing a small amount of business before adjourning for a Budget Work Session to discuss the fiscal year 2020-2021 operating

During the regularly scheduled meeting, the Council approved a recommendation from Engineering Manager David Burnett to award the contract, in the amount of $731,350 for the Georgia Cumberland Academy Sanitary Forcemain project to UWS, Inc. There were eight total bids submitted for the project, ranging from the low bid of $731,350 up to $1,168,225.

City Administrator Paul Worley then gave the general fund cash report through the end of March.

"The current general fund balance is $3,697,000. This compares to about $3.8 million last month," said Worley. "Our Restricted Cash Excise Tax we typically don't transfer that over but quarterly, so on the last cash report that was $151,000; you'll notice this month it's at $203,000. We have a reduction in the Recreation-Hotel/ Motel account. Last month we were at about $67,000; this month, we're at $36,000 in large part due to the completion and payroll expenditures of our dog park. Last month, our golf account was at $146,000; this month we're up to $227,000, so that's a nice increase. SPLOST revenues continue to come in monthly. We're currently at $2,566,000 for 2018 in uncommitted funds, and about $1.9 million for committed funds for Peters Street. We currently have about $507,000 in the Revolving Loan (account). The cash report is in good standing this month; we'll be watching this closely as a lot of the sales tax revenues and hotel/motel revenues we expect to be decreasing and haven't reflected yet on this cash report."

Utilities Administrator Larry Vickery then presented the Council with the monthly utilities report.

"Electric, water, telecommunications and utilities administration operating accounts have $4,730,424.46. For electric, water, sewer, telecom and all the other reserve accounts, we have a cash balance of $7,754,934.37 for a total of $12,485,358.83. That's a good standing," said Vickery.

The Council meeting adjourned and Mayor Jimmy Palmer opened the

Georgia Chamber: Free Enterprise Responds

Chris Clark President & CEO Georgia Chamber

Over the last few weeks, the power of enterprise has been on full display as companies around the world have shifted, planned, reprogrammed and adjusted to protect employees and customers across a very different economic landscape. At the same time, we have witnessed small businesses and gig workers struggle in the economic aftermath of coronavirus. Thankfully, government leaders at the local, state and federal levels moved swiftly to enact major legislation saving thousands of U.S. companies, their employees and families. Though the road ahead will be difficult, the combined forces of a democratic republic and free enterprise will overcome. During this time, I have heard the drumbeat of an old tune grow louder. Extremists want to argue that since the government offered loans to support some businesses, this action somehow translates into a failure of the free market; a crisis of no business making. However, the restrictions imposed on business and the public by governments around the world to protect their citizens does not mean that capitalism has failed or was at fault. In fact, quite the opposite is true.

When the western world was attacked by this pandemic, it immediately turned to the free market for help. And, just like that, businesses stopped their normal operations, focused on the problem at-hand and delivered solutions to fight a common enemy that threatened the very life of mankind. Just as industry in the U.S. turned from making cars to manufacturing tanks in World War II, the power of the free

Who would have predicted that a virus could've had this much of an impact on us? I didn't see it coming.

At the time of this March when we were writing, we had two flips scheduled to sell within the week. One, which was supposed to have closed at the end of March, just got pushed back for the third time to next week. That means if it does close, we went almost a month past the contract date. This is supposedly due to the mortgage company employees having issues

HEALTH NEWS

GEORGIA HEALTH NEWS: Kemp says COVID tests available, maintains there's no rift with Trump

ANDY MILLER Georgia Health News

Any Georgian with COVID-19 symptoms can now get tested, Gov. Brian Kemp said Monday.

"We have the tests, we have the physicians, we have the sites, and we have the bandwidth. What we need now is more Georgians to participate," Kemp told reporters at a press briefing at the state Capitol.

The governor also defended his decision to reopen certain businesses expires May 1. But Kemp said vulnerable Friday, and restaurants and movie theaters Monday. Georgia's reopening plan is considered the most aggressive of any state during the pandemic.

Kemp also did not show any resentment of President Trump's criticism of Georgia's reopening plan. Trump said last week that Georgia was moving too fast.

"The president and I share a common goal and that is to protect both the lives and livelihoods of Georgians as well as the American people," Kemp said. "I want to continue to applaud the president's leadership during these difficult times."

The governor said the country is looking at "Depression-like" unemployment forecasts, and that he shares Trump's goal of restoring the economy to its past levels.

Kemp said there was "no bad news" when businesses reopened Friday.

about the reopening of hair salons, barbershops, tattoo businesses, bowling alleys and nail salons, Kemp said. By of the Department of Public Health, following health guidelines, businesses acknowledged Monday that the state did "were protecting themselves and their customers," he said.

"A lot of people decided to wait" to reopen their businesses, he said. "I support them 100 percent."

The directive on reopening "wasn't a mandate," the governor noted. "I didn't order anybody to open their business, or order anybody to patronize any business."

The governor's shelter-in-place order people with medical conditions and residents of long-term care facilities need to continue to shelter until May 13.

How much testing is enough?

"Our testing numbers are quickly increasing," Kemp said. Georgia is now 36th among states in per capita COVID-19 testing, up from 42nd. "We still have work to do."

He said he based his reopening decision on case numbers. Hospitals are reporting lower number of COVID-19 cases, Kemp said.

Yet a new analysis by Harvard researchers and STAT, published Monday, said that more than half of U.S. states will have to significantly step up their COVID-19 testing to even consider starting to relax stay-at-home orders after May 1.

To detect hot spots, Georgia must do 9,600 to 10,000 tests per day, and it Many Georgians were excited has been averaging around 4,000, the analysis said.

Dr. Kathleen Toomey, commissioner cases not meet the White House Task Force guidelines on reopening businesses, but said progress is being made on those

The guidelines include adequate COVID-19 testing, contact tracing, and health care capacity. The guidance also says that before reopening, a state should have seen a decline in new COVID-19 cases for 14 days. Georgia has not yet met that standard.

But Toomey also said that Kemp is looking at factors other than data in making his decisions.

Dr. Harry Heiman, a Georgia State University health policy expert, said the testing capacity is improving in the state. "But numbers alone don't ensure that there is adequate capacity in all parts of our state with equitable access by all communities," he said.

"Even with some of the expansion of testing sites to rural communities, we are still focusing on drive-in centers," Heiman said. "These remain inaccessible to those without a car. We are already seeing compelling data that low-income communities, communities of color, and rural communities, like Dougherty County and the surrounding counties in southwest Georgia, are being disproportionately impacted. These same communities continue to experience some of the greatest barriers to testing."

Gainesville sees increase in georgiahealthnews.com.

Toomey said she envisions the contact tracing effort - to identify an infected person's contacts — having a workforce of up to 1,000 people in the state.

Public Health reported Monday night that there have now been 24,349 total COVID-19 cases in Georgia. The state's death toll from the disease now stands at 1,000.

Kemp said the Georgia COVID-19 numbers have been skewed upward by the Albany outbreak, but added that situation in the city in Dougherty County is easing.

He also said the Gainesville area has noted an increase in COVID-19 cases, and hospitals there have seen more infected individuals. Gainesville is a center of the poultry industry, and Kemp said state Insurance Commissioner John King met with industry leaders "to ensure that their workers understand public health guidance and that we continue to work together to stop the spread of COVID-19."

Kemp touted a breakthrough on personal protection equipment that has been developed in Georgia.

A new system in Atlanta uses vapor hydrogen peroxide to decontaminate N95 respirator masks. It can decontaminate up to 80,000 N95 respirator masks per day, with each able to be decontaminated up to 20 times.

REPORT FROM THE CAPITOL from Representative Rick Jasperse

BY: RICK JASPERSE, (R-Jasper, District 11) State Representative

Let's have some Good news this week and something we can all agree on. For those attending a higher education institution like UGA, Dalton State, Kennesaw State, or any other state school, there will not be a tuition increase this year. Good news, students! It was good news to learn that the University System of Georgia Board of Regents (USG-BOR) unanimously approved a recommendation to keep tuition the same for the upcoming fiscal year.

Undergraduate and graduate students will pay the same for the 2020-21 academic year as they did for the 2019-20 academic year. If you were wondering, the University of Georgia in-state tuition is $4,895 per semester for students taking more than six hours. Out-of-state tuition is $14,415 per semester for students taking more than six

This is the third time in the past 10 years the USG- a shout of APPRECIATION to for online classes as they would for in-person classes. Out-of-state students will pay the same tuition rates as they did for spring 2020.

COVID-19 has hit the Board of Regents in the pocketbook just like most everything and everyone has been. The BOR's revenue losses are expected to be between $330 and $340 million through the summer to receive approximately $125 million in funds from the federal government. A decision on how these funds will be used has not been reached yet.

Governor Kemp Gives COVID-19 Update

GOVERNOR BRIAN KEMP

Atlanta, GA - On Monday, Governor Brian P. Kemp delivered the following update on COVID-19. Governor Kemp was joined by Georgia Department of Public Health Commissioner Dr. Kathleen Toomey, Georgia Emergency Management and Homeland Security Agency Director Homer Bryson, and Georgia National Guard Adjutant General Tom Carden.

"Good afternoon. Today I'm joined by General Tom Carden, Dr. Kathleen Toomey, and GEMA Director Homer Bryson.

"Before we get started, I want to thank the faith leaders and Georgians who participated in our day of prayer. In our fight against COVID-19, we must continue to pray for our healthcare workforce, frontline workers, law enforcement, and Georgians affected by the coronavirus.

"As of noon today, we have 23,773 confirmed COVID-19 cases with 942 deaths, and a total of 127,169 tests. Through the leadership of public health departments, the National Guard, partnerships with Augusta University, CVS, Walgreens, Walmart, and others, our testing numbers are quickly increasing – but more must be done.

"As of this morning, Georgia ranks 13th among states and territories in the total number of tests, and for per capita testing, we are now 36th overall. In less than one week, Georgia moved up from 42nd in per capita testing to 36th. We still have work to do, and we will keep fighting to improve testing access and capacity.

"From the beginning – when we launched the Coronavirus Task Force and held our first press conference – we promised to lead with transparency and provide regular updates as we fight this virus together. The Department of Public Health has worked tirelessly to integrate information for testing, hospitalizations, and transmission to keep the public informed. We realized as a team that we can provide a more unified, user-friendly platform for Georgians in every corner of our state.

"Earlier today, we unveiled a new COVID-19 dashboard. It offers interactive reports which track emerging indicators, rates of growth, and outcomes of COVID-19 interventions. Geo-mapping capabilities support our efforts to identify and address emerging hotspots. The dashboard allows decision-makers to evaluate multiple scenarios to identify vulnerable populations, such as healthcare workers, the medically fragile, and communities with at-risk populations. This data is presented in multiple formats, including an will be able to access your test results rooms with a minimum of fifteen worked closely with the Trump hover to see key statistics, such as the incidence rate per 100,000 people in a county's population. Additionally, charts and statistics display demographic information for individuals who have tested positive for COVID-19. Most information will be updated hourly, but the total number of tests will continue to be updated twice per day. Right now, the new dashboard is accessible through the same website address, but the format is easier to use.

"As I've said many times, the expansion of testing is key to our fight against COVID-19. For weeks, the state has worked closely with private labs and local health departments to address the need for more testing and ramp up capacity in each region of Georgia. We have leveraged partnerships with wellrespected companies – like CVS, Walmart, and Walgreens – to open more specimen collection sites and encourage symptomatic Georgians to get tested. Last week, we launched a new partnership with Augusta University Health System for free, statewide COVID-19 screening and testing by leveraging the power of telemedicine. Since then, Augusta University Health has conducted 2,059 screenings with its clinicians and referred 1,513 symptomatic Georgians – or 73 percent – for COVID-19 testing.

"We have the tests; we have the physicians; we have the sites; and we have the bandwidth. We just need more Georgians to participate. Right now, all symptomatic Georgians can take advantage of this resource, and I am calling on anyone who is experiencing symptoms consistent with COVID-19 to act. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the following symptoms are consistent with coronavirus infection and may appear two to fourteen days after exposure:

- Fever
- Cough
- Shortness of breath or difficulty breathing
- Chills
- Muscle pain
- Headache
- Sore throat
- Loss of taste or smell

"To get a free screening by an Augusta University Health System doctor, visit AugustaHealth.org, download AU Health ExpressCare on your smartphone, or call (706) 721-1852. If you meet criteria for testing, staff will contact you to schedule a test at one of the state's designated testing locations near your home. From there, we will leverage the power of several key academic institutions in the state to process tests, including Augusta University, Georgia State University, and the Georgia Public Health Lab. In roughly seventy-two hours, you medical provider will contact you directly if you are positive.

"Since the start of the public health state of emergency, local public health test sites across Georgia have collected more than 32,000 specimens for COVID-19 testing. Last week alone, by aggressively pushing for more testing, local departments collected 12,086 specimens for testing – a 64 percent increase from the previous week. Georgia's public health departments now have forty-nine test sites open across the state.

"Yesterday, we announced partnership with Walmart, eTrueNorth, and state and local officials to set up drive-thru sites in communities with limited testing access. Beginning today, a mobile testing unit will now serve Augusta, Milledgeville, Tifton, and the surrounding regions on a rotating basis. This unit will test Georgians with symptoms of COVID-19, and healthcare providers and first responders can be tested whether or not they are exhibiting symptoms. Georgians can make an appointment at www.DoINeedaCOVID19Test. com and on-site scheduling will also be available. We are grateful to Walmart, eTrueNorth, and community leaders for their help to get this operation up and running.

"To prepare for patient surge, our hospitals have worked around the clock to identify hundreds more general use and critical care beds for COVID-19 treatment. Hospitals were able to identify hundreds more, and as of this morning, we have 1,023 critical care beds available for patients. It's the highest number of critical care beds that we've had available since hospitals began tracking the data.

"Ventilator use has also declined over the past few weeks. There are roughly 1,000 ventilators in use across Georgia with more than 1,800 ventilators available for a total capacity of more than 2,800.

"Currently, there are nine recovering COVID-19 patients at the alternate care facility at the Georgia World Congress Center. They were transferred from Grady, Emory, and WellStar to open acute care hospital beds for incoming patients. We continue to coordinate with our hospitals to monitor capacity and, if needed, accept non-critical or nonintensive care patients.

"In Southwest Georgia, we partnered with local leaders to build out Phoebe North in Albany for use by nearby Phoebe Putney Memorial Hospital. Of the twelve ICU rooms completed on April 20, ten are currently occupied, and out of thirty general patient rooms that we built, nineteen are currently occupied. By April 29, we expect to have an additional twenty-nine interactive map where users can via a secure patient portal, and a new ICU rooms. Although we are Administration and our federal seeing declining transmission in counterparts to mitigate the the community, we will continue to identify opportunities for expanded access to ensure the locals have what they need to fight the virus.

> "As I've mentioned previously, the state purchased four temporary hospital units to deploy to Albany, Rome, Macon, and Gainesville. By May 6, we will complete installation of units at Phoebe Putney Memorial Hospital in Albany, Floyd Medical Center in Rome, and Navicent Health in Macon. Phoebe Putney Memorial Hospital will gain twentyfour general hospital beds, Floyd six critical care beds and fourteen gain ten critical care beds and ten general hospital beds.

coronavirus has had a devastating impact on long-term care facilities, putting vulnerable populations at increased risk and causing alarm among public health officials, healthcare professionals, and families. Georgia's battle against COVID-19 in these facilities wages on, and we are fighting it with everything in our power to keep the medically fragile and elderly out of harm's way. On April 8, I signed an order mandating strict sanitation protocols and changes in existing living arrangements - including a ban on visitors except for endof-life circumstances - to stop the spread and improve conditions. The Department of Community Health has been working day and night to check for compliance and hold facilities accountable. Surveyors are contacting facilities daily to ensure they are utilizing appropriate resources to safeguard residents and "The Department is also publishing reports every Monday through Friday to show COVID-19 case numbers and deaths in licensed facilities, giving families the transparency that they deserve to protect their loved ones. The Department has also recently launched a temporary nurse aide training program to address staffing challenges in long-term care. This program was established with assistance from the Georgia Health Care Association and Alliant Health Solutions to provide quick onboarding for nurse aides needed to care for residents during this emergency period. I commend Commissioner Frank Berry and his team for developing these resources for Georgia families.

"For weeks now, my team has impact of coronavirus in Georgia. Our decisions and direction are informed by data and public health recommendations, and we remain focused on protecting the lives – and livelihoods – of all Georgians.

"To slow the spread of COVID-19 and prepare for hospital surge capacity, we asked Georgians to shelter in place and closed specific businesses throughout our state. Most businesses remained open with restrictions to ensure community health and well-being. We were successful in our efforts to protect Medical Center in Rome will gain Georgians and our state's healthcare infrastructure. With favorable data general hospital beds, and Navicent and approval from health officials, Health in Macon will gain seven we took a measured step forward by critical care beds and seventeen opening many shuttered businesses general hospital beds. By May 14 throughout Georgia for limited when installation of the fourth unit operations. Starting today, theaters is complete, Northeast Georgia may reopen and restaurants and Medical Center in Gainesville will dining rooms, including those at private social clubs, are allowed to resume dine-in services if they meet "Across the nation, the certain mandatory criteria to prevent the spread of COVID-19.

> "Bars, nightclubs, operators of amusement park rides, and live performance venues will remain closed, and the shelter in place order remains in effect through April 30, 2020. Medically fragile and elderly Georgians must continue to shelter in place at least through May 13, and as we assess the situation, we will continue to provide updates.

> "Over the weekend, the Department of Public Safety was on call to respond to complaints regarding compliance with the executive orders for specific businesses reopening. On Saturday, none of our nine Georgia State Patrol command centers reported any sustained complaints of noncompliance. On Sunday, Georgia State Patrol received twelve calls with only two sustained complaints, both involving large gatherings. Officers used those opportunities to raise awareness about social distancing rules – as they have been doing for weeks now - and both groups voluntarily dispersed.

> "Georgians are heeding the advice of public health officials and law enforcement to ensure the health and well-being of customers and workers, but we will continue to monitor compliance in every region of our state. Before I move on, I want to take some time to thank our law enforcement community for their work through this pandemic. Like our healthcare workers, they are working long hours to keep Georgians safe in every zip code, and we appreciate their sacrifices. Keep them in your thoughts and prayers, including their loved ones, distancing and slow the spread of COVID-19," said Palmer. Worley gave a highlight of the proposed 2020-2021 budget as it stands at this time, telling the Council that it is online at www.cityofcalhoun-ga.com under the Finance tab.

"All the line items are very detailed," said Worley. "Once we get closer to the passing of the budget, we should have more summaries that are easier to follow than the line items. Early in the game, we don't have all the level of details with presentations and summaries available just yet."

Worley also reminded this is subject to change due to the current economic climate.

"As we stand right now, I feel pretty confident we're in a good position. We have a balanced budget with a surplus," said Worley. "We have concentrated closely on our revenues. We are currently at a revenue for the General Fund of $15,060,000. We've really looked hard at this; early in the process, back in February, when we began looking at revenue projections; we were closer to $15.8 million, so we've reduced our revenue projects by over $700,000. The majority of that reduction is in Local Option Sales Tax (LOST). We've reduced (LOST) by around 15 percent. We think that is going to be hit hard due to the economic shutdown. We reduced hotel/motel tax by around 25 percent; that industry has also been hit very hard. We've reduced some of our utility transfers to the General Fund, anywhere from 3-5 percent depending on the line item."

Worley said that property taxes look stable at this time.

"We are basing (property taxes) on our current digest and current millage rate," said Worley. "(At this time), there is no millage rate increase proposal."

"We're at a little over $15 million in revenues; total expenses in the General Fund is at $14,873,000, so that's a positive variance of $186,000," said Worley. "We'd really like to hold onto that variance right now until we get more financial information and sales tax data to review. That could be reduced even farther if we feel like we need to reduce our revenue projections more."

Worley said that the biggest expense increase the City will see this coming fiscal year is an employee health insurance increase of 9.5 percent over the present fiscal year.

"We basically only have 0.7 percent increase overall in the expenditure side of the General Fund, which is good," said Worley. "We do have a 9.5 percent increase on employee health insurance, and that is more than the majority of basically all the increase on the General Fund side. The department heads did a very good job of holding the line on items that they could control, so we're very pleased to see that on the expenditure side."

"I want to thank Mr. Worley and all the department heads for the job they've done and the time they've put into this," said Palmer. "I also want to thank the Finance Department and the work they've put into this (budget)."

On the Utilities side of the budget, Vickery mirrored that his departments are being cautious during the economic uncertainty pertaining the COVID-19 pandemic.

"We've asked all of the department heads to resist capitalitem purchasing until we are pretty secure in the revenues that will take place and the transactions and what's going to happen with the slowdown in business that is taking place," said Vickery. "We've asked them to hold off on those purchases until January 2021."

Vickery said that there was also some 2011 SPLOST dollars left to use on the Peters Street and other utilities projects.

asked Serrano who the male subject was that ran but Serrano said he didn't know but Luis Corzo did. The officer then asked Serrano if the suspected cocaine was his, and Serrano told the officer that it wasn't and that it was flour. While speaking to Corzo, the officer asked if he knew who the man was that fled, and Corzo said that he didn't know him. The officer then advised Corzo that Serrano had told him that he knew him, and Corzo then told the officer the man was "OT," also known as Octavius Curtis, 32. The officer then asked Corzo if the suspected cocaine was his, and Corzo advised it was not and that it was flour. The officer then spoke with the juvenile, asking him if the cocaine was his, who advised the officer it wasn't and that it was flour.

Serrano and Corzo were transported to Gordon County Jail, while the juvenile was placed in the back of the patrol car and transported to the Calhoun Police Department, where juvenile intake was contacted and made aware of the incident. The juvenile was then turned over to his legal guardian.

While at the police station, the officer ran Octavius Curtis through the system and retrieved his photo, confirming he was the man that ran from the car. The juvenile also told the officer that Curtis was the subject who ran from the car. After running Curtis through the system, it was learned that Curtis had active warrants for Larceny out of Gordon County.

Serrano was charged with Possession with Intent to Distribute Cocaine, Possession of Cocaine, Possession of Drug Related Objects and Improper Turn. Corzo was charged with Possession with Intent to Distribute Cocaine, Possession of Cocaine and Possession of Drug Related Objects. The juvenile was charged with Possession with Intent to Distribute Cocaine, Possession of Cocaine and Possession of Drug Related Objects.

an officer observed a black Honda Civic traveling south on Newtown Road in Calhoun. The vehicle made an improper left turn onto Red Bud Road by turning into the outside lane. The officer initiated a traffic stop at the BP station on Red Bud Road. While the vehicle was still moving, the officer observed the front passenger side door open, and a black male wearing a black hoodie and camouflage cargo shorts exited the vehicle, running toward R. Timms Road and The Prescription Shop. The officer began giving the three subjects left in the vehicle the command to exit the car, while other officers arrived and began chasing the man who fled, giving the man verbal commands to

The driver of the Honda was identified as Alejandro Serrano, age 23, of Longmeadow Drive in Rome. The passenger behind the driver was identified as a teen/juvenile. The other backseat passenger was identified as Luis Corzo, age 19, of Woodberry Court, Calhoun. All three were detained due to the odor of marijuana emitting from the vehicle. The officer noted that while looking inside the vehicle, there was a green substance in the floorboard believed to be marijuana shake.

The officer began a probable cause search of the vehicle, locating a clear plastic bag containing a white powdery substance believed to be cocaine; it was tested with an issued field test kit and tested positive to be cocaine. There was also what the officer believed to be a marijuana cigarette in the front center console area. A black digital scale was found in the front passenger floorboard.

The officer read the three their Miranda Rights separately, with all three stating they would talk to the officer. While speaking to Serrano, the officer asked where they were coming from and Serrano said they had left a house party and were on the way to the BP station on Red Bud Road. The officer then officer; other officers tried to get Curtis to give them his hands and comply. It is noted that Curtis' left hand was underneath him and it was unknown at the time if he was attempting to get a weapon, so compliance strikes were made in attempt to get Curtis into custody as quickly and safely as possible. Curtis finally complied and was placed under arrest.

A search of Curtis' person began, and a black sock with a clear, glass smoking device containing believed methamphetamine was located in the front of his underwear.

EMS was called to the scene due to Curtis having a nose bleed and tone of the officers suffering a cut behind his left eat and cuts on his arm while attempting to arrest Curtis. Curtis was cleared by EMS for jail. During the chase, one of the officers radio mic wire was damaged, at an estimated cost of $80.

Curtis was questioned why he ran during the traffic stop on April 22 at the BP, and he told officers he didn't want to go to jail because he was on parole. When asked about the suspected cocaine that was found in the car during the traffic stop, Curtis advised it wasn't his cocaine, but the driver's, Alejandro Serrano. Curtis also said the scale that was located in the vehicle was not his either, and that he was trying to get Serrano some customers to pass out the cocaine.

Curtis was arrested and charged with Possession of Methamphetamine, four counts of Obstruction, Possession of Drug Related Objects, Interference with Government Property and Battery (Police Officer).

and please pray for the loved ones of fallen Smyrna officer Christopher Ewing, who lost his life in the line of duty a few days ago. He was beloved by his community, and he will be sorely missed.

"Working with Georgia Hispanic Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Santiago Marquez — who serves on our Community Outreach Committee — and Insurance Commissioner John King, we are strengthening efforts to inform Georgia's Latino community about the risks of COVID-19. Partnering with the Mexican Consulate, General King and Mr. Marquez will continue to actively engage communities across our state, starting with Hall County. Over the past few weeks as other areas of our state have seen reduced transmission of the virus, the Gainesville area has experienced an increase in cases, and our hospital partners in the area are seeing more hospitalizations. General King is there today speaking with leaders in the poultry industry to ensure that their workers understand public health guidance and that we continue to work together to stop the spread of COVID-19.

"Under the leadership of General Carden, the Georgia National Guard has worked tirelessly to assist emergency response efforts across our state. Currently, there are 3,145 soldiers, airmen, and state defense force personnel engaged in the COVID-19 response with infection control teams, medical support teams, food bank support, school lunch delivery, and general support teams as needs arise. Right now, there are 978 personnel working in sixty-nine infection control teams assigned to decontaminate Georgia's 790 long-term care facilities, including nursing homes, assisted living facilities, personal care homes, community living arrangements, hospice, and similar facilities. To date, these dedicated teams have provided critical support – by sanitizing the facility and training staff on enhanced infection control protocols – to 710 facilities, which is 90 percent of Georgia's long-term care facilities, with some receiving multiple visits.

"Given the heightened risk of adverse consequences for the medically fragile and elderly, this work by the Guard is truly lifesaving. Their efforts have been highlighted by the Trump administration as well as national, state, and local media, and they have started to train other states on their practices. Their hard work doesn't stop there. Right now, the Guard has 206 personnel in twenty medical support teams deployed to twenty hospitals in Georgia, lending a helping hand to our healthcare workforce and necessary medical care to patients. They have 190 personnel in seven hospital entry support teams deployed to conduct patient arrival screening at healthcare facilities. 170 soldiers are supporting eight food banks, loading and unloading shipments and packing containers for distribution - and at the Atlanta Community Food Bank, supporting the movement of six million pounds of food, the equivalent of five million meals. There are fifty-five service members helping with school lunch deliveries, supporting the delivery of over 137,000 meals to students in Fulton County alone.

"Soldiers are also providing support to the Department of Public Health with drivers and couriers at thirteen of their eighteen regional health offices, logistics support at their warehouse, and reinforcement at test sites. The Guard is supporting Walmart's mobile testing initiative in Richmond County today, and will support them in Milledgeville and Tifton in the coming days. Personnel are providing reinforcement at nine specimen collection sites in conjunction with Augusta University, covering Albany, Moultrie, Decatur, Forsyth, two sites in Atlanta, Kennesaw, Morrow, and Sparta.

"As I mentioned last week, the Guard has galvanized ten mobile strike teams for test specimen collection, focusing on nursing homes, first responders, law enforcement, and mental health facilities across Georgia. They are also supporting our partnership with Augusta University at their command center with forty-nine personnel. I applaud the brave men and women who have answered the call to service and who are fighting the virus with every fiber of their being.

"Speaking of local heroes, we have a great resource for frontline healthcare workers with the Battelle Decontamination System set up right here in Atlanta. The Battelle Decontamination System is a self-contained device that uses vapor hydrogen peroxide to decontaminate N95 masks. The device consists of eight 20-foot shipping containers, and starting today, it can decontaminate up to 80,000 N95 masks per day with each mask being able to be decontaminated up to 20 times. This system will give us the ability to recycle critical supplies, and it is currently available to all medical facilities, long-term care facilities, and first responders. I encourage healthcare facilities to reach out to GEMA and take advantage of this resource as they continue their work on the frontlines of our fight with COVID-19.

"Over the last several days, many have written about Georgia's plan to slowly reopen the businesses shuttered by our state's shelter in place order, and many more have written about the President's insight and advice on our game plan. Rest assured, the President and I share a common goal and that's to protect both the lives and livelihoods of Georgians and the American people. We had another great call today with the President, Vice President, members of the administration, and our nation's governors. We appreciate the President's leadership during these difficult times, and we are grateful for the resources provided as we work to keep Georgians safe and ensure a bright and prosperous future in every corner of our great state.

"While it's easy to get discouraged or lost in the noise, I have found inspiration and encouragement from small business owners who were able to safely open their doors and serve customers in their city or town. I know this situation can test your patience and your faith, but please know, we stand with "Over the weekend, I also heard from doctors in our state concerned about patient health and well-being. Given the shelter in place order and need to social distance, many with chronic diseases or medical needs have avoided the doctor's office or the pharmacy. If you have a medical need, please take advantage of the telehealth opportunities that many doctors have embraced during this pandemic. At the very least, call your physician to check in and schedule your appointment. Make the necessary arrangements today to ensure a healthy tomorrow.

"I want to close today with a renewed call for unity. These are unprecedented times in our state and nation, but we are making great progress. We have accomplished much, but there's still a long way to go.

"There are differing opinions on how best to tackle COVID"Speaking of local heroes, we have a great resource for the setup right here in Atlanta. The Battelle Decontamination term set up right here in Atlanta. The Battelle Decontamination term is a self-contained device that uses vapor hydrogen oxide to decontaminate N95 masks. The device consists oxide to decontaminate N95 masks. The device consists and our neighbors. We all want to emerge from this pandemic safe and victorious.

"So please, stand with us in the days and weeks and months ahead. Encourage your loved ones to follow the Executive Orders and social distancing guidance. Find a way to support your local businesses, and take care of your neighbors who need help. Use social media to share important updates and highlight the good that's going on around us.

"And I would ask all Georgians to do what I do every day. Pray for the state's health leaders who are helping chart our course forward. Pray for those on the frontlines, and pray for your elected officials who are trying to do what's right for the people they serve.

"I urge you to continue to follow our guidelines and take care of the most vulnerable. If we do, I am confident that together, we will defeat COVID-19 and our best days will remain ahead."

THE HUNT FOR FILM: Rewatching the 2000s

COOPER HUNT Movie Reviews at The Hunt For Film

TOP 20 OF THE 2000s

My Top Twenty isn't based on objective critical quality or awards-deserving attributes. These are simply the films I personally enjoyed and appreciated the most from the 2000's.

#1 The Lord of the Rings: The Return of the King (2003)

Viggo Mortensen and not to mention Serkis as Gollum or Shore's music, and it serves as an unspeakably satisfying, emotionally-charged conclusion to my all- fighting for." time favorite trilogy.

"A day may come when the courage of Men fails, when we forsake our friends and break all bonds of fellowship, but it is not this day. An hour of wolves and shattered shields when the Age of Men comes crashing down, but it is not this day. This day we fight!" Grade: A+

#2 The Dark Knight (2008)

Christopher Nolan's true magnum opus tests our hero's idealistic stance through a defining performance from Heath Ledger, equipped with a magnificent script, supporting cast, and score.

"He's the hero Gotham deserves, but not the one it needs right now. So we'll hunt him because he can take it. Because he's not our hero. He's a silent guardian, a watchful protector... a Dark Knight."

Grade: A+

#3 The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring (2001)

Tolkien's world is realized to perfection, powerfully enlivened by one of the best ensemble casts ever gathered and enriched by artists with Oscar-winning skill in costumes, makeup, visuals, and music.

Grade: A+

#5 The Lord of the Rings: The Two Towers (2002)

A grimmer sequel in which Andy Serkis' Oscar-worthy performance is the best of numerous highlights, the world is expanded brilliantly, and it's topped off with the best battle in cinematic history.

"Even darkness must Sean Astin own this film, pass. A new day will come. And when the sun shines, it will shine out the clearer... there's some good in this world, Mr. Frodo, and it's worth

Grade: A+

#6 O Brother, Where Art Thou? (2000)

A simple idea of true comedic inspiration that meets the high mark of The Odyssey with sidesplitting, endlessly quotable dialogue and performances, as well as a wonderful amalgamation of timely tunes.

"You sold your soul to the devil? Well, ain't it a small world, spiritually speaking. Pete and Delmar have just been baptized and saved. I guess I'm the only one that remains unaffiliated."

Grade: A

#7 Inglorious Basterds (2009)

Tarantino writes/directs a mind-boggling screenplay packed with heart-pounding suspense and tension as well as that signature dark hilarity, brought to life by powerhouses Brad Pitt

#8 Casino Royale (2006)

Daniel Craig's 007 debut is the best Bond film as it grounds the character in an unprecedented sense of realism and relatable humanity, including scene after scene of engagement in both action and drama.

Pixar takes an incredibly unique turn into French culture and cuisine in a beautiful animated film that engages all the senses and is enough to make even the harshest critic crack a smile.

"The bitter truth critics must face is that the average piece of junk is more meaningful than our criticism designating it so. There are times when a critic truly risks something, the discovery & defense of the new."

Leonardo DiCaprio and Tom Hanks go headto-head in a humorous yet dramatic international battle of the wits that keeps the viewer questioning as to who they're morally obligated to root for.

"Try Red! It's the new Blue!"

Grade: A-

#19 Star Trek (2009)

J.J. Abrams makes a rare hit with a reboot that brings fresh blood via an amazing cast and,
